CITIES & THE POOR

Cities, as large and complex human settlements are observed to be reservoirs of opportunities for economic well-being, human and social development. The city and its centripetal attraction for folks from the hinterland are due to its economic, social and cultural features. Alternatively natural disasters, loss of livelihoods, conflicts and related factors push the vulnerable to move to cities for the sake of survival. The rapid urbanization as unprecedented growth of cities poses several challenges and repercussions. The theme of the conference 'Cities and the Poor' draws attention to deliberate on the issues of urban poverty, housing and tenure security, financial and technological assistance in low cost house construction, generally.
