BACKGROUND

The Department of Architecture and Planning, NED University has organized eleven seminars on urban and regional planning successively from 2004 to 2016. This series of seminar has been able to provide a platform to architects, planners, academia, industry and researchers to share their scholarly research on emerging issues, evolving concepts and new body of knowledge in the field of urban and regional planning. These seminars focused on broad issues of education, practice, learning from experiences; planning and managing urban change; planning in a globalizing world; interface of planning with the market economy; urbanization and secondary cities; dynamics of land in planning; housing for all; planning for people; and planning and institutional arrangements. Research scholars and experts from various countries presented their papers, which were later on published as eight separate volumes of seminar proceedings distributed free of cost to the concerned individuals, institutions and academic links.

Since year 2017, the scope of this Seminar was extended to International Conference. This enhancement in scale of seminar has proven to be a stimulating junction for scholarly debates, discussions, networking and partnerships for future research activities. Till date the department of Architecture and planning has hosted three International Conferences of Urban and Regional Planning (CURP) for the following themes.

- 1st CURP- Urban Resilience and Adaptation
- 2nd CURP- Cities Beyond City
- 3rd CURP- Innovation in Planning and Practice

A sizable number of International and national experts deliberated at length on key matters related to above stated themes. Few selected papers from the conference were published in peer reviewed biannual research journal of Department of Architecture and Planning 'Journal of Research in Architecture and Planning'

CALL FOR PAPERS

The 4th International Conference on Urban and Regional Planning (CURP) – 2020 is scheduled to be held in Karachi, Pakistan on 13th -14th March 2020 focusing on the theme of 'Retaining City Histories – An Approach to Integrated Planning'. This Call for Papers invites urban planners, architects, government officials, academics and all allied professionals to share their knowledge and researches befitting to the theme of this conference for the benefit of public, professionals and students of subject.

CONFERENCE THEME

Human development has been indebted to cities that always tended to embrace opportunities to grow and reflect their identities. All cities irrespective of geographical variations have historical, social, political and economic context. Under the influence of political, economic and sociocultural factors cities undergo several development phases such as reconstruction, transformation, demolition and conservation. Retaining city histories with respect to tangible and intangible values possess several challenges of local governance, infrastructure development, socioeconomic planning for development, legal framework and enforcement, traffic and transportation, involvement of stakeholders and technical expertise. Retaining local identity having distinctive characters and visual integrity of historic cities has become a local pride that engenders sense of belonging and boosts tourism and economic benefits. However, wave of urbanization, trend of cloned-global cities, massive expansion in city scale along with poorly conceived and badly implemented development policies have delineated historical urban environments. There is truly a dire need to promote the historical value of a city and implement beneficial strategies for urban planning management to demonstrate identity, social, cultural and economic life of the city. Integrated planning can become a game changer for improving economies, creating conducive environments and uplifting the livelihoods.

The two day, 4th International Conference on Urban & Regional Planning (CURP20') aims to have an intellectual discourse on the city histories, which would be helpful in elaborating on the importance of integrated planning for retaining city histories and its opportunities, challenges and threats. CURP20' encourages paper presenters to share and generate strategic visions which may inspire the participants, decision makers, local politicians, planning agencies and bureaucrats to shape and co-ordinate their 'Development' undertakings to make positive differences.

The theme of the Conference 'Retaining City Histories – An approach to integrated Planning' poses many questions such as how to rescue quickly depleting tangible and intangible traces of history? How to provide layers of infrastructure that are needed to revamp past traces? How to address the ever increasing demand of land resource in comparison to histories preservation? And what challenges can be converted into opportunities?

The theme of the Conference also draws attention to deliberate on the implications of integrated approach in Planning and Practice, generally across the globe, and particularly in Pakistan. Following are the sub themes for the Conference:

- Technical expertise in urban conservation/heritage planning
- Criticism on the historiographical perspective of the city
- Historicity as source of documentation
- Impact of historiographic contextual account on city's planning

- Reflection of history and historiography on integrated planning in global perspective
- Urban heritage and historicity
- Critical impact of responsible tourism towards city's expansion
- Influence of oral history on urban designing
- Local tourism- challenges and emerging opportunities
- Tangible and intangible Urban heritage,
- Lessons learnt from global practices in heritage conservation
- Localization v/s globalization
